Slow-roast lamb shoulder with boulangère potatoes

Sunday lunch for a crowd. The lamb roasts low and slow over sliced potatoes, which soak up all the juices.

Serves 6–8 | Prep 30 min | Cook 4 h 30 min | Total 5 h

Ingredients

- [ ] 2 kg lamb shoulder, bone in
- [ ] 1 bulb garlic, cloves peeled
- [ ] 4 sprigs rosemary
- [ ] 6 anchovy fillets
- [ ] 2 tbsp olive oil
- [ ] 1.5 kg floury potatoes, thinly sliced
- [ ] 2 onions, thinly sliced
- [ ] 500 ml hot chicken stock
- [ ] 200 ml white wine
- [ ] 30 g butter
- [ ] 1 tbsp thyme leaves
- [ ] 1 lemon, zest only
- [ ] Small bunch mint, chopped
- [ ] 1 tbsp red wine vinegar
- [ ] 1 tsp caster sugar
- [ ] Salt and black pepper

Method

1. Take the lamb out of the fridge an hour before cooking. Heat the oven to 160°C fan.
2. Pound half the garlic, the rosemary leaves and anchovies to a rough paste with the olive oil and plenty of pepper.
3. Use a small knife to make deep cuts all over the lamb, then rub the paste into the cuts and over the surface.
4. Layer the potatoes and onions in a large roasting tin, seasoning and scattering thyme and the remaining garlic between the layers.
5. Pour over the stock and wine, dot with butter, then sit the lamb on top. Cover tightly with foil.
6. Roast for 4 hours, basting once or twice, until the lamb pulls apart easily with a fork.
7. Remove the foil, turn the oven up to 200°C fan and roast for a further 30 minutes until the potatoes are golden at the edges.
8. Meanwhile, stir the mint, vinegar, sugar and 2 tbsp boiling water together for a quick mint sauce.
9. Rest the lamb for 20 minutes under loose foil. Scatter with lemon zest and serve with the potatoes and mint sauce.
10. Leftover lamb keeps for 3 days in the fridge; shred it into flatbreads with yoghurt and pickled onions.

Kitchen notes

Ask the butcher to score the fat for you. Works just as well with goat shoulder; add 30 minutes.
